

The Magnificent Ball (Cinderella The Saint)!

Cinderella The Saint:

Cinderella has spent most of her life being a people pleaser, she was always trying to fit in no matter how out of place or character she was. She was always rejected because of envy and jealousy; she never really quite understood why though because she was very insecure with herself, but she made others feel good, she would go that extra mile and make folks laugh and smile. But unbeknownst to her it was mostly false. Cinderella had an aura about herself that she obviously didn't realize but the enemy did, and he would try to destroy her as much as he could, he threw swords and stones at her from every angle, trying to corrupt her with alcoholism, drugs, and all manners of temptation (even sex), but we all know as the Bible confirms it; what the devil means for bad God turns around for good!

Cinderella would ever so often attend church and some of what she learned she kept close to her heart and she would act on it, and try to stay on the straight and narrow, but after so long temptation would creep in and overtake her, causing her to backslide and relinquish her innocence and sanctification. She was baptized at an early age so she was familiar with being saved and all, but not the Holy Ghost (who is the keeper/giving power to resist sin) and speaking in tongues as the evidence.....

One night Cinderella was visited by an angel of the Lord (an odd experience Cinderella thought) but he visited nonetheless; he told Cinderella Jesus required more of her, and that by her attending this ball (youth revival) she would begin to prepare to give it to Him (Christ). He spoke a strange language to her, because she did not understand when he said she would recommit her life to Christ and she will be overtaken by the Spirit and power that will cause her to tarry/wait for the hour to meet her prince (prince of peace), where they would dance together, work together, live together, and all. He would be her keeper, sustainer, and comforter, and guide her unto all truths of life. A real live happily ever after.....

Stepmom: "Cinderella didn't I tell you to mop the floor and take out this garbage before you got on that computer girl?"

Cinderella: "Yes mam, but I have to get this book report done by 12 and turn it in or I will get an F in class tomorrow."

Stepmom: "Well, that's your business; and what is this thing they having at church and you told Edna you wanted to go? Well you know? It depends on how I feel Cinderella?"

Cinderella: Mumbled to herself, "well I can imagine what that will be about."

Stepmom: "Ya need to go to ask God to ask you to pass this class cause if you don't have my house clean it will be yo you know what. "Hmm", she mumbled as she stepped out the door and slammed the door behind her."

The next day Cinderella as she was at her desk she nodded off for a moment, and the teacher noticed her, he woke her up by slamming a paper marked with a red F on her desk, just as she knew the F she would be getting if she hadn't turned in her assignment. When Cinderella had gotten out of class a few of her friends (supposedly) met up with her in the hall, and urged her to cut class with them, and poor Cind not wanting to jeopardize her friendship with them, she agreed to come along; can we say peer pressure? Cinderella though she made many bad decisions as she follows her friends, she always felt out of place and character.

One night when her stepsisters Edna and Gina went to the show with their mom Irene, and poor Cinderella is left home and desiring to go to the youth event at her church, she prayed and prayed, and while she was about to raise up off her knees, an angel of the Lord visited her and told her of her assignment of God, that she was to go to church and that she would have such an experience, when Cinderella went to church she enjoyed the dancing and clapping of hands and the sermon/message, by the end of service during alter call she was so ready to recommit her life back to God, she got saved and was speaking in tongues, and all.....

The pastor asked Cinderella if she had anything she wanted to share with the church (any words) she excitedly but politely got the mic and stood on the stage/pulpit, and she cried as she spoke;

Cinderella: "I'm so glad God saved me, I mean I'm just so happy to be back in His arms again, I had been looking all over for love and I just couldn't find it, I had no peace in my life, my friends are not true friends, my family is not my own and they treat me like crap, but I can say I'm glad I came here, it has been so great, I was baptized at younger age but I never spoke in tongues, "whew I feel different already", " To God be the glory!"
